

Published based on Jamie Oliver Wins \$100K TED Award For Battle Against Childhood Obesity « ecorazzi.com :: the latest in green gossip

Jamie Oliver Wins $100K TED Award For Battle Against Childhood Obesity « ecorazzi.com :: the latest in green gossip

Now this is reality TV worth watching. It is really good to see this from multiple levels. First, a reality show that is dedicated to truly helping people is long overdue. Hopefully it will catch on. Second, being recognized for doing work that will truly help one of the biggest problems around the world (obesity) is pretty cool.

The show, called Jamie Oliver's Food Revolution USA, will be on ABC this year. It is being produced by Ryan Seacrest (you've heard of that show called American Idol he hosts haven't you?). Hopefully, this powerhouse lineup will ensure that this show is seen by a lot of people and truly shows people how to make healthy changes in their lives.

Check out the entire article by clicking on the link after the excerpt below.

"We're thrilled to award the TED Prize to Jamie Oliver," said TED Curator Chris Anderson. "His work directly tackles one of the most distressing issues the world faces... the obesity epidemic. In this year in which his TV show launches in the United States, we look forward to helping him achieve even greater impact."

The television show mentioned is Jamie Oliver's Food Revolution USA, which will start in 2010 on ABC, and be produced by Ryan Seacrest. The series will show Oliver giving healthy makeovers to places around the U.S.

Jamie Oliver Wins \$100K TED Award For Battle Against Childhood Obesity « ecorazzi.com :: the latest in green gossip

You can also find this article published on Jamie Oliver Wins \$100K TED Award For Battle Against Childhood Obesity « ecorazzi.com :: the latest in green gossip