

Published based on Thousands With Heart Disease May Be Getting Wrong Surgery

Thousands With Heart Disease May Be Getting Wrong Surgery

Are you or a friend or relative going to have heart surgery soon? If so are you sure you are getting the right one? A new report show that thousands of Americans are getting the wrong type of heart surgery. Click on the link to get more information.

At least 5,000 Americans a year are dying because they're getting the wrong kind of surgery for heart disease, new research suggests.

Tens or potentially hundreds of thousands of Americans are having coronary artery angioplasty and stents each year when cardiologists should be performing bypass grafts, according to a large-scale European-American study featured in the Los Angeles Times.

Thousands With Heart Disease May Be Getting Wrong Surgery - AOL Health

You can also find this article published on Thousands With Heart Disease May Be Getting Wrong Surgery, and on the tag pages AOL, AOL health, heart, heart surgery, surgery.